Vincent Reed named new chairman of Annual Business Campaign

by Nancy Connors

Vincent E. Reed, vice president for Communications at the Washington Post, has been named chairman of the 1983 Annual Business Campaign for Gallaudet College. During the coming months, he will be forming a new volunteer committee of area business leaders and preparing for the new campaign.

The 1982 Annual Business Campaign began last September. The first goal of this campaign was to raise funds for the renovation and development of the College's new Northwest Campus. The 1982 chairman was Kenneth Wells Parkinson, a partner in the firm of Jackson, Campbell & Parkinson.

Under Parkinson's direction the campaign was able to raise $180,000 in 1982. Many of these donations represent a corporation or business' new involvement with Gallaudet College. Parkinson feels that although Gallaudet is a college with a national reputation that it is "not well known in the Washington business community." The first year of the campaign faced the double challenge of the "serious recession and the need to break down the isolation of the College," according to Parkinson.

Parkinson credits the "marvelous product" of a Gallaudet education with part of the success of the fundraising campaign. "There was a specific need expressed by the shortfall of funds to renovate the Northwest Campus, along with the projected increase in the student population," he commented.

Local business donations were often substantial. The Philip L. Graham

Foundation made a $40,000 contribution. Both Potomac Electric Power Company and C&P Telephone donated $15,000 to renovation effort and Riggs National Bank, gave $10,000. These gifts, along with others, will be recorded on plaques on the new campus buildings.

Parkinson chaired a volunteer committee of six area business leaders. Each of these gentlemen was honored at a breakfast meeting on Feb. 9 with a certificate acknowledging their outstanding service to Gallaudet College. The other members of the committee were Alexander A. Beiro of A.A. Beiro Construction Co., Melvin L. Chrisman of the Riggs National Bank, George M. Ferris, Jr. of Ferris & Co., Vincent E. Reed and Robert W. Wening, Jr. of Mills, Clagett & Wening.

Reed is the former superintendent of the District of Columbia school system and a resident of the area for the last 30 years. He has been involved with various educational programs on Kendall Green over the years and is familiar with many of the programs. He says that the College's acquisition of the Northwest Campus, formerly Marjorie Webster Junior College, is a great use for a facility that "needed to be revitalized." He lives near the site of the Northwest Campus and added that it "will be nice to see young people in the neighborhood who will be an addition" to the community.

The Annual Business Campaign is managed on campus by the Office of Development. Susan Menick is director of Corporate and Foundation Relations and serves as liaison to the Annual Business Campaign Executive Committee.

New dean chosen, renovation begins on Northwest Campus

With the selection of a dean for the new Northwest Campus and the recent receipt of a building permit from the D.C. government, Gallaudet is a couple of steps closer to having the Northwest Campus ready for preparatory students who will begin classes there next fall.

Ann Davidson, currently chairperson of the Biology Department and director of the Associate of Arts Degree Program, was selected to be the dean of the School of Preparatory Studies on Feb. 9. She will begin working in her new position on March 1.

Davidson said that between March and the time the Northwest Campus opens in August, she and others in-involved with the campus will be doing work in a number of areas. Some teachers will be working on revisions in the current curriculum during the summer. "We will be busy trying to define the skills and competencies that we want students to leave the Northwest Campus with to be successful," she said, emphasizing that this will be an ongoing process not just limited to this summer. Meetings and workshops will be held during the summer concerning the best way to implement a team concept for the Northwest Campus. Personnel will try to establish rapport with the surrounding community, and they will also tackle "all the housework of physically getting settled."

Davidson, who has her MA in Zoology and PhD in Zoology and Biochemistry from Howard University, began working at Gallaudet in 1977. She taught preparatory students for her first two years here and has been chairperson of the Biology Department for three years and director of the AA Program for the past two years.

Among other activities she has served as chairperson of the SimCom Evaluation panel and served on Committee C and the task force for establishing the School of Arts and Sciences at Gallaudet. She is also the Gallaudet campus representative for the National Identification Program for Women in Higher Education. This program, which came out of the American Council on Education, tries to identify women in higher education who have the potential to move into higher level positions.

Deafness bulletin board comes to SpecialNet

by Ken Kurlychek

SpecialNet, an electronic mail/information system sponsored by the National Association of State Directors of Special Education (NASDSE), will be instituting a bulletin board for the exchange of information and ideas related to deafness. SpecialNet currently has 19 other bulletin boards that provide information in areas such as television, computers, legislation, visual impairments and assistive devices.

In addition, users of SpecialNet can send and receive messages with more than 600 other subscribers across the country. Campus personnel can have access to SpecialNet through the three campus libraries and the School of Education and Human Services.

Gallaudet and NTID are expected to be the main contributors of information to the Deafness board. The information entered will include, but not be limited to:

- Brief summaries of research studies.
- Upcoming meetings and conventions.
- Helpful teaching techniques and strategies.
- Requests for information and technical assistance.

- Citations to useful print and non-print materials.

Anyone with an appropriate contribution should submit their information to either Boris Bogatz (SEHS), Carolyn Jones (College Library), Ken Kurlychek (MSSD) or Marcine Thomas (KDES).

Contributors should keep in mind the following:

- The subject line should be an easily understood phrase that sums up the content of the text. There are 32 spaces available for characters and blank spaces alike.
- Keep the text brief and to the point.
- Philosophical opinions will be sent to the Opinions board. However, materials reviews and the like are legitimate and welcome on the Deafness bulletin board.
- Brief mention of the target population related to the contributed information can be very useful to the reader.
- Provide postal address and telephone numbers whenever appropriate.

It is hoped by everyone involved that the Deafness board will prove to be a useful communications link with professionals throughout the country. Active participation by the Gallaudet community can help ensure that this is so. For additional information on SpecialNet, contact Ken Kurlychek, Box 77, MSSD.

Resource centers

The U.S. Department of Education has announced that it will fund contracts to establish regional resource centers that will assist state educational agencies, and through them local educational agencies, in developing quality programs and services for all handicapped children.

The centers will work with consumer representatives to identify persistent problems, introduce the most recent developments in special education research technology and practice into the state programs and involve the experience of states that have handled similar problems in special education.

The closing date for requests for proposals is March 17. For more information, contact the Office of Sponsored Research or the Department of Education, AMPS, Operation Support Branch, 7th and D Sts. SW, ROB 3, Room 5671, Washington, D.C. 20202, Attn: RFP 83-025, Carol Carter, contracting specialist, 245-1773.

Play reminder

Tickets are still available for the March 4 and 5 performances of "Metamorphosis," the winter production of the Theatre Arts Department. Tickets are $2.50 for students and $4.50 for others, and the play will be held in Elstad Auditorium.

Tickets can be ordered by calling x5606 voice or x5608 TDD. Box office hours are March 1 from 1-3 p.m. and 2-5 p.m., and March 4 and 5 from 2-8 p.m.

This snow sculpture was one of several that appeared on campus after the recent snow.

College Council meeting held

Newly-elected staff representatives, along with outgoing members, attended their first College Council meeting Feb. 9.

President Merrill shared information about the 1984 budget, which the College is currently involved in defending. Although Gallaudet originally asked for increased funding, to $56.9 million, that amount was cut twice, and the Office of Management and Budget has allowed a 1984 budget request of $55.5 million.

The budget will be submitted to Congress by President Reagan, and Merrill said that in March the College will have to go before House and Senate subcommittees on appropriation.

Because of the cut in the original budget request, said Merrill, Gallaudet has decided to reduce projected pay increases from an average of 7.5% to an average of 6% (which includes faculty pay increases, staff functional and staff merit increases).

Vice President of Academic Affairs John Schuchman attended the meeting to discuss the Northwest Campus (see related story) and Phoebe Simmons, director of Public Affairs in the Alumni and Public Relations Office, discussed Gallaudet's new logo, which is now being developed.

Two candidates visit this week

Get-acquainted hours are scheduled Monday, Feb. 21 and Wednesday, Feb. 23 for interested persons to meet two presidential candidates for Gallaudet.

Both get-acquainted hours begin at 3 p.m. in the Ely Center Atrium. On Monday, Dr. W. Lloyd Johns will be here. He's currently president of California State University at Sacramento. Dr. Robert Frisina, the senior vice president of the Rochester Institute of Technology, will be here Feb. 23.

Helpful HINTS

National Captioning Institute has begun to air a special Hearing Impaired News-Text Service (HINTS) which may be seen each weekday morning on ABC-TV during the time that "Good Morning America" is shown.

Approximately 10 minutes each morning will be given for items of particular interest to hearing impaired persons. Depending on consumer input, included will be items pertaining to educational, legal, medical, legislative, civic, social and sports activities affecting the lives of hearing impaired persons.

The success of the news service will depend on input from organizations and agencies serving hearing impaired citizens as well as from individuals throughout the nation. Information thought of as being of national interest can be mailed to HINTS, National Captioning Institute, 5203 Leesburg Pike—15th Floor, Falls Church, VA 22041. Interested persons can call (703) 998-2423 or 998-2466, both voice or TDD.

Free lunch winners

Persons with the following Social Security numbers are entitled to a free lunch in the Alumni House during the week of Feb. 21-28. To claim your lunch, stop by the Alumni House or call x5277 voice or x5105 TDD.

Tax help available

If you need help preparing your income tax this year, it's available through the Prince George's County Memorial Library System. Volunteer Income Tax Assistance/IRS staff will help taxpayers complete forms 1040A and 1040, and interpreted sessions for hearing impaired people are available.

Interpreted sessions are being held at various P.G. County branch libraries through April. For more information call 699-3500 voice or 699-9113 TDD.

Global Perspectives workshop scheduled for faculty members

A growing awareness by a number of faculty members for the need to internationalize the emphases in many Gallaudet offerings has led to a special two-part faculty workshop on Global Perspectives scheduled for Tuesday, March 1 and Wednesday, March 2 from 3-5 p.m. in the Cafeteria Red Room.

A global perspective emphasizes the interdependence of people through the world and helps reduce bias and fear toward outside groups as well as promoting better world communication.

These special meetings will provide an opportunity for faculty from all departments to learn about ways to include a global perspective in their courses, to review and collect sample free materials to assist in the process of broadening courses, and to exchange ideas with other faculty on this topic. The March 1 meeting leader will be Dr. James Harf, executive director of the Consortium for International Studies Education at Ohio University; he will identify significant issues in "globalizing" the College curriculum. On March 2, the leader will be Dr. Mort Rozanski, associate dean of International Studies at Adelphi University; he will provide faculty with practical methods for broadening specific courses.

All faculty attending the two meetings will also receive a packet of materials giving key ideas about how to approach course revision to include a more global perspective. The session on March 2 will also give everyone the chance for individual consultation on course revision.

In addition, faculty will learn about two other faculty development opportunities scheduled for the near future: how to apply for special faculty IDEC grants in the summer of 1983, which have been allotted to the global perspectives emphasis; and how to obtain a small grant to cover expenses of attending a special national conference on Global Perspectives, scheduled in Washington, D.C. in June, 1983.

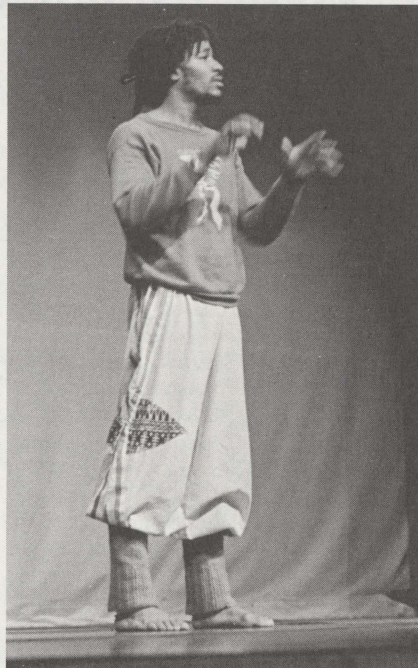

All faculty interested in attending these sessions or in obtaining more information are asked to leave a message for either Mynga Futtrell at x5421 or David Martin at x5400, to reserve a place at these sessions.

Hospital offers CPR training

Cardiopulmonary resuscitation (CPR), an emergency lifesaving technique, will be taught in a special class for deaf and hearing impaired people Feb. 22 and 28 at Alexandria Hospital. The classes will be held from 6:30-10:30 p.m.

Instructed by emergency department personnel skilled in signing and lip-reading, the two-part class will cover resuscitation of the adult, child and baby; one- and two-man techniques, and how to remove breathing obstacles from conscious and unconscious victims. Persons completing the class will receive Red Cross certification in CPR.

A $12 fee covers the cost of books and instructional materials. The class will meet in the physical therapy department of the hospital, 4320 Seminary Road. To register, call the health promotion department, 370-WELL, voice only.

Professional dancer Jimmy Turner performed and spoke with MSSD students Feb. 14 to celebrate Black History Day at the school. Turner, who teaches dance and gymnastics to both hearing and deaf students, is a member of the Chuck Davis African Dance Group in New York City and has won a Tony award for "Conspicuous Achievement in American Theater."

Learn to improve telephone interpreting

The Personnel Office is sponsoring workshops on "Improving Telephone Interpreting Services on Campus." The workshops will be held March 10 and April 12 from 9 a.m.-noon in the Learning Resources Center, Room LN-11 of the Learning Center. There is no charge for the workshops.

Betty Colonos, an instructor with the Department of Sign Communication; Marie Taccogna, coordinator of Gallaudet Interpreting Services; and Earl Elkins, an interpreter with GIS, will be the principal presenters. The workshops will provide information on various techniques of telephone interpreting through demonstrations and simulated situations.

Interested persons can contact Malcolm Grossinger on x5656.

Entries accepted for CASE awards

Gallaudet will again this year participate in the recognition (awards) program sponsored by the Council for the Advancement and Support of Education (CASE). Last year's submissions netted the College four awards.

Gallaudet's submissions are being coordinated through the Institutional Advancement Office, and Laura-Jean Gilbert, director of Publications in the Alumni and Public Relations Office, will be accepting entries for possible submission to CASE.

An independent jury on campus will judge all campus entries and select those entries which best represent Gallaudet. No more than six entries will be selected to be submitted. The A/PR Office will pay the entry fees as its share of this institutional effort.

Last year, Public Service Programs was awarded special recognition for its packet of program materials produced for the Deaf-Blind Convention held on campus the previous June. Gallaudet's Community Relations program won an Exceptional Achievement award. Also receiving recognition were Experiential Programs Off Campus for a videotape developed to interest potential employers in the EPOC program, and Art and Photography Services for the animated film, "A Message," produced as a reading motivation tool for hearing impaired children.

Categories for submission include directories/rosters, events publications and promotion, fundraising booklets and brochures, fund-raising folders and flyers, annual reports, student handbooks and publications for students, student recruitment brochures and folders, viewbooks and prospectuses, catalogs (recruitment or exhibition), other publications and direct mail.

If you have a publication or a printed piece you would like to have considered, send it to Laura-Jean Gilbert, MSSD Room 213 or c/o Alumni/Public Relations, Chapel Hall, by Feb. 28. Remember that you will need to be able to supply relevant data on your entry's purpose, cost and effectiveness if it is selected to be submitted in the competition.

NTD to perform at Kennedy

The National Theater of the Deaf will perform at the Kennedy Center Terrace Theatre from March 7-12.

During their one week stay they will present the Washington premiere of "Parzival: from the Horse's Mouth" by NTD founder David Hays and resident playwright Shanny Mow. It's a fantasy/farce about a brave but naive knight, his horse and their encounters with various mythical characters during their quest for the holy grail. Each cast member plays many roles, including a boat, an ostrich, a ferocious medieval beast and the usual array of princes and peasants.

Groups of 20 or more are eligible for priority seating as well as discounts on prices for all performances except Friday and Saturday evenings. Student groups will receive half price discounts for performances except Saturday evening.

Tickets may be ordered by calling the Kennedy Center Group Sales Office at 634-7201.

ATBCB Briefs

by Merv Garretson

The Architectural and Transportation Barriers Compliance Board has finally moved into the area of communication barriers. In October Richard D. Dirst joined the staff of the Office of Technical Services as a communication barriers specialist.

Formerly executive director of the Registry of Interpreters for the Deaf (RID), Dirst also served as superintendent of the Atlanta Area School for the Deaf and as principal at the American School for the Deaf. He has degrees in education of the deaf and the visually impaired from Northern Illinois University and the University of Northern Colorado at Greeley. In addition he has completed doctoral course work in educational administration at Georgia State University.

Dirst's extensive background and experience in lecturing, consulting and managing workshops should be helpful in sensitizing the ATBCB to communication barriers for deaf persons, and in exploring ways to reduce them.

David Myers of Louisiana, the only deaf member of the Board, has been assigned to the committee on communications and the committee on compliance and enforcement.

Complaints to the ATBCB should be addressed to: Complaint Specialist, Architectural and Transportation Barriers Compliance Board, 330 C St., SW, Room 1010, Switzer Building, Washington, D.C. 20202. Include your name, address, congressional district and daytime telephone number; a brief, precise description of the barrier-related problem; the name and address of the building or facility where the barrier is located; the name of the agency occupying the facility and the telephone number; the name of the person responsible for the facility and telephone number; the name of the building owner; the name of the federal agency occupying the building or providing funds for its use; your suggestions for solving the problem quickly and inexpensively; and finally, your actions taken to date.

NW Campus

Davidson as dean of the Northwest Campus, Vice President for Academic Affairs John Schuchman noted that she was one of the few candidates for the position who had actually taught preps.

Schuchman, in speaking of the Northwest Campus at a recent College Council meeting, said that the bulldozers are now at work on the campus, since the D.C. building permit gives Gallaudet the green light to proceed with major renovation. "The Physical Plant promises that we will be on the campus the first week of August," Schuchman said. All buildings on campus need to be made habitable, and plumbing, electrical and painting work needs to be done as well as landscaping. The Main Building on the Northwest Campus also requires major renovation to modify it to meet the needs of the College. Furniture and equipment is also now being purchased for the buildings.

Additional staff will be hired in July to help implement the program, said Schuchman. But in addition to recruiting new personnel, "one thing that has been pleasing to me is that we are getting enough people to transfer voluntarily to the Northwest Campus," said Schuchman. Some people from MSSD may be assigned to the new campus for a period of time, and the College already has some 200 applications for positions at the Northwest Campus, he said.

About 50 faculty and staff members will be working on the Northwest Campus, said Schuchman, and this number does not include Security, custodial and Business Affairs people. The rough budget for the new campus is about $1.2 million.

Schuchman noted that several years ago, Gallaudet established a task force to look at students affected by the rubella epidemic of the 1960s, who are now reaching college age. About 1,500 seniors are taking the Gallaudet admissions examination this month, compared with about 900 last year. "All prior results suggest that they will be like regular students, but this month will be the real test," he said. Data on the achievement tests of rubella students should be available at the end of the month.

Gallaudet will host SEAAD basketball tourney

The Prince George's Association of the Deaf will host the 37th Annual Southeast Athletic Association of the Deaf Regional Basketball Tournament slated for March 3-5. The tournament will be played at the Gallaudet College Field House.

The SEAAD, affiliated with the American Athletic Association of the Deaf (AAAD), serves 26 deaf clubs from Maryland to Florida. At least 12 teams are expected to participate in the tournament including local clubs Metropolitan Washington Association of the Deaf (MWADO), PGAD, Potomac Silent Club and Capitol City). Defending champions Carolinas from Charlotte, NC coached by Hubert Anderson, a Gallaudet student, are the favorites to win this tourney for the third year in a row.

Preliminary games will be played all day Friday. Semi-finals will be played Saturday morning and the championship game Saturday afternoon. A Grand Ball will be held Saturday night at the Marriott Twin Bridges Hotel in Arlington, VA, headquarters for the tournament. For ticket information call John Wilson, General Chairman (301) 552-2081 TDD.
